Additional speakers shown: Blaine Christiansen, PhD, Jennifer Woodell-May, PhD, Gabriela Graziani, PhD

Scientific collaborations are essential for productive and innovative research, and your professional network can provide support and advocacy in all aspects of your career. In this session, three speakers will present tips for forming new collaborations, both within academia and with industry partners, and advice for expanding your professional network of mentors, collaborators, and colleagues. Presentations will be followed by a panel discussion with questions from moderators and attendees.
